COLD WAVE FOR ARKANSAS

Hot Springs City Engineer Located at Houston, Tex.

Calls at Office of Friend, Robert Rudder, Early This Morning

START TO ARKANSAS

Wife of Man Arrives in Houston and Starts Home With Him

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 15.—(P)—Harry S. Moreland, city engineer of Hot Springs, Ark., apparently amnesia victim, missing from his home since October 3, turned up here today, at the office of a friend, Robert Rudder, according to an announcement by Mr. Rudder.

The Hot Springs engineer, Rudder said, had been injured some time ago and he supposed that is why he wandered away from home.

Mrs. Moreland, arrived in Houston late last night and today started back to Hot Springs with her husband in an automobile.

"At times Moreland recognized me and at times he did not," Rudder said. "He seemed in good physical condition."

A Hot Springs newspaper report that Moreland had been found Wednesday was denied by Rudder. Rudder said at the time of that report he had not seen Moreland. Rudder said he thought that Moreland might have arrived in Houston Wednesday and wandered around until this morning when he found him.

Saturday Accident Hearing Postponed

Johnny Ward, Injured in Accident Unable to Attend Preliminary

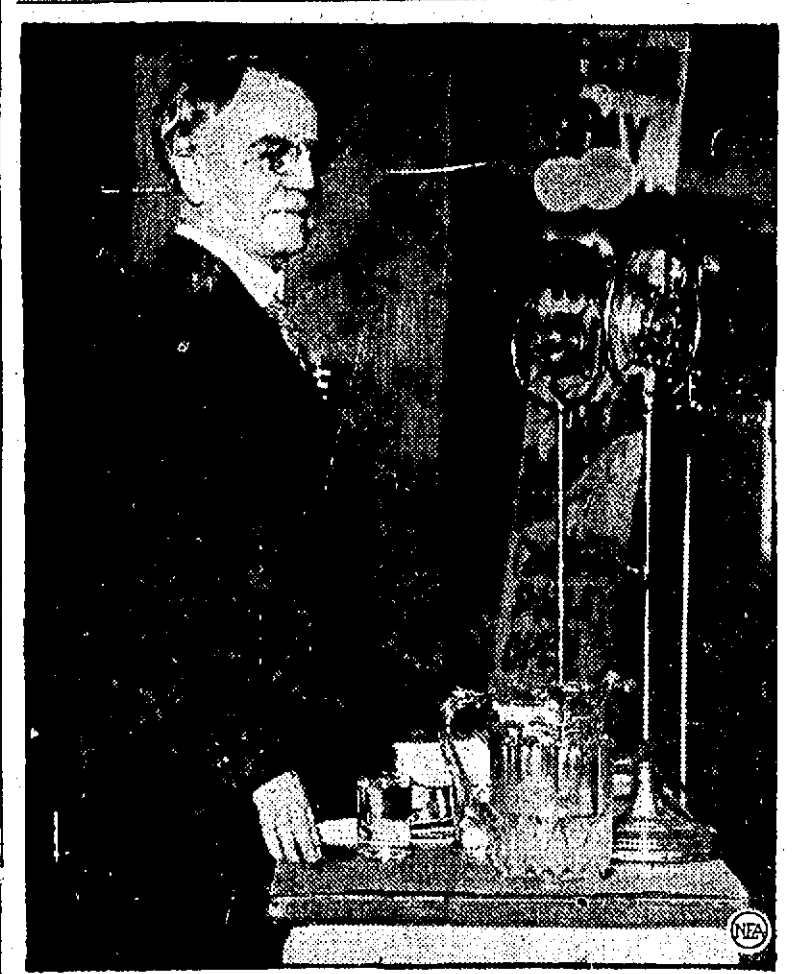

PRESCOTT, Oct. 15.—The preliminary hearing of Buster Westmoreland, held on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of John Ward and Bud Lewis in an automobile accident Saturday morning was indefinitely postponed by Justice of the Peace W. J. White Wednesday morning.

The postponement was made in response to a request by the State that the hearing be delayed until Johnny Ward recovers sufficiently from injuries sustained in the accident to testify.

Johnny Ward is in the Cora Donnell Hospital with several broken bones. He was driving the car in which his father and Mr. Lewis were killed. The collision between the car and the truck driven by Buster Westmoreland occurred on last Saturday morning at the intersection of the Prescott-Bodewy and the Hope-Camden highways. The two older men were instantly killed.

Oborne White, Hawaiian sugar planter, has taken over 8,000 acres of land in California to fatten beef cattle and raise alfalfa.

Morrow Opens New Jersey Senate Drive

Attributing the present business depression to war and post-war influences beyond the control of the national administration, former Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Republican candidate for United States Senator from New Jersey, is pictured above as he opened his campaign in Newark. He reaffirmed his stand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and repudiated "wholly unauthorized statements" that he may be an opponent of President Hoover for the 1932 Republican nomination for the Presidency.

Amendment Number 26 Prohibits Reducing Pay

Amendment to Favor Distant Relatives and Heirs in Paying Inheritance Tax to the State and Federal Government

Editor's Note—This is the eighth in a series of articles dealing with the nine proposed constitutional amendments and two initiated acts to be voted upon at the general election November 4. The following deals with Proposed Amendment No. 26.

By JENNY N. DORRIS
LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 15.—(P)—Abolishment of the present system of inheritance taxes in this state and the substitution, if the legislature so elects, of the system of inheritance taxes levied by the United States government would be accomplished if Proposed Amendment No. 26 is adopted at the polls on next November 4.

This amendment is one of seven proposed and sponsored by the Arkansas Taxpayers' Protective Association.

The proposed amendment provides that the state may levy a tax on such estates as would be compelled to pay a tax to the federal government, but that the state tax must not be in excess of the federal rate.

Comparison of the present state inheritance tax rates with those of the federal government is difficult, as the state taxes the individual heirs while the federal government taxes the estate as a whole.

However, David A. Gates, commissioner of revenues for Arkansas, has estimated that if Proposed Amendment No. 26 is adopted, four-fifths of the present revenue from inheritance taxes will be eliminated.

The present state inheritance tax rates on widows, children and grandchildren and certain other close relatives of the decedent, are: One per cent on the first $5,000 of the estate; two per cent on the next $5,000; three per cent on the next $5,000; four per cent on the next $5,000; five per cent on the next $5,000; six per cent on the next $5,000; seven per cent on the next $5,000; eight per cent on the next $5,000; nine per cent on the next $5,000; and 10 per cent on estates having a value of more than $100,000.

These rates are doubled where brothers and sisters of the decedent are heirs, and are quadrupled where the heirs are no blood relation to the decedent.

Mr. Gates said the first schedule, or that applying to widows, children and grand children of the decedent, is probably the nearest approach to the federal schedule.

"The state has gone on the assumption that widows and orphans should pay the smallest tax, and that heirs not so closely related to the decedent should pay a greater tax," Mr. Gates said. "If the proposed amendment is adopted, the only persons who will benefit will be the brothers and sisters and distant relatives, if related at all, of the decedent who become heirs to his estate."

"The widows and children will pay, comparatively speaking, the same tax under federal rates as they pay now. The amendment simply will favor only the more distantly related heirs of the decedent."

"The proposed amendment reads as follows: 'No inheritance or death tax shall hereafter be levied on the estates of deceased persons, except on estates taxed by the United States government, and then not in excess of the amount of such federal tax.'"

County Nominees Have Until Next Monday—Norwood

Attorney General Allows Five More Days Than For District Men

NEW DEADLINE 20th

County Nominees Advised To File Before Next Monday

Hempstead county Democratic nominees who failed to file their certificates with the county election board Tuesday night—the last hour for state and district filings—have until next Monday, October 20, to complete filing, in an opinion published this morning by Attorney General Hal Norwood at Little Rock.

In an oral and unofficial opinion, given the Arkansas Gazette today, Mr. Norwood drew a distinction between the "deadline" for state and district offices, and for county offices.

Deadline October 20

The attorney general said that certificates of nomination for county offices are not required to be filed with the county election board until 15 days before the election. As the general election is to be held Tuesday, November 4, this would leave the lists open to county nominees until Monday, October 20.

The Star learned late yesterday that the dispute surrounding the eligibility of all but three of the Hempstead county Democratic nominees does not concern the district and state candidates. Millard Alford, of Gurdan, Democratic nominee for prosecuting attorney in the local district, stopped at The Star office to say that on Monday he went to Little Rock to present the certificates for himself, Circuit Judge Dexter Bush, and three senators from this section of the state.

How Controversy Started
In its story yesterday The Star stated that courthouse records at Washington appeared to show that only three Democratic nominees—John L. Wilson, for sheriff; Miss Lillie Middlebrooks, for county treasurer; and Mrs. Gladie Morris, for justice of the peace in DeRoan township—had qualified midnight Tuesday by filing their corrupt practice pledges for the general election.

This interpretation of the law was disputed by Luke Monroe, a former prosecuting attorney of this district and widely known attorney, and this morning's oral opinion from Attorney General Norwood appears to confirm Mr. Monroe's view.

Local political observers believe that the controversy is founded in a clash between a legal technicality and the customary procedure which has been followed ever since the passage of the state primary law in 1913. Attorney General Norwood upholds the customary procedure.

However, he appears to advise all Democratic county nominees who have not yet filed their corrupt practice pledge to do so before Monday, October 20.

Red Cross Roll To Be Called Oct. 27

Mrs. N. T. Jewell Is the County Chairman For Drive

The date of the annual Red Cross Roll Call has been advanced to Monday, October 27, it was announced today from Midwestern headquarters at St. Louis.

Mrs. N. T. Jewell has been appointed Roll Call chairman for the Hempstead county chapter. The Rev. F. A. Buddin is chapter chairman.

The headquarters statement follows: Unusual conditions prevail throughout the state of Arkansas. A considerable number of chapters have requested authorization to present the annual Roll Call appeal during the month of October, in order that they may by this means meet present needs, expand the local membership of the Red Cross, and provide funds with which to meet the anticipated needs of the coming winter.

Arrangements have been made to advance the date of the Annual Roll Call and to present the appeal in Arkansas chapters, beginning on Monday, October 27, and continuing until each chapter's territory has been covered.

The early Roll Call appeal authorized by this letter must provide for the annual membership normally enrolled during the period from November 11th to Thanksgiving. The principal objective of the Roll Call will be a representative membership which will finance the chapter's current service, and provide funds for extraordinary expenditures anticipated.

Roll Call supplies will be shipped immediately to chapters which have not received allotments. Members of the National Staff will assist the chapters in the organization of the Roll Call appeal. Chapters which have not appointed a Roll Call Chairman should give immediate attention to this matter as the first step toward an adequate Roll Call organization.

The Red Cross must have a larger membership in Arkansas to enable the chapters and the National Organization to maintain Red Cross service.

Unsettled Weather Described in Official Forecast

SNOW IN COLORADO

Seven-Inch Fall Reported in Dispatch From Denver

A cold wave is headed for Arkansas, and the mercury, which has been soaring at near-summer height for the few weeks, is expected to come down with a thump tonight or Friday.

The official forecast for Arkansas is for cloudy and unsettled weather tonight, with increasing cold Friday, partly cloudy and colder.

Overcast, skies greeted Southwest Arkansas residents all day today, and behind the brewing storm there is a strong promise of the first cold snap of autumn.

Except for two or three nights early in September, practically autumn weather has prevailed here this fall. The expected cold snap is of uncertain duration, and will hardly reach the proportions of a frost, no frost warning having been issued by the Weather Man.

Rev. Strassmer Is Kiwanis' Speaker

Discusses Sportsmanship, and Story of Notre Dame Football

A plea for good sportsmanship in athletics was delivered at the Thursday noon meeting of the Kiwanis club, at Hotel Barlow, by the Rev. Geo. F. X. Strassmer, member of the club, and pastor of the local Catholic church.

He made a plea for the Kiwanis in the promotion of fair athletics. "It is only within recent years that we have to be fair minded in athletic contests," he said. He told of the improvement in his own school of Notre Dame, now famous everywhere for its brilliant football coach and players. It was only within recent years that this school cheered the opposing team as it came on the field, or brilliant playing by its members. Lovers of football are appreciative now-days, of the finer points of the game, and of the importance of good sportsmanship, in all of the larger schools. The speaker asked that spectators at Hope's game always observe the etiquette of clean sports. He asked the club to exert its influence in spreading the doctrine of good sportsmanship.

Robert J. Thompson, manager of the local Montgomery Ward store, was formally taken into the civic club. He took the membership left vacant by Art. Scheffer, former manager.

President Dewey Hendrix and Frank May are to represent the local club at the annual tri-state convention, to be held in Topeka next week.

Spoiling the Scenery

THE automobile touring season of 1930 is just about over; and if you asked the average tourist for his chief impression of the scenery along his vacation drive the chances are that he would mention the great national eczema of advertising signs along the highways.

Looking back over a summer spent largely on the highways, one recalls these signboards in a dizzy, ever-multiplying panorama. They make the approaches to our cities hideous and they mar one's enjoyment of quiet country roads; they intrude upon pleasant vistas of inland lakes, they dot the whitefringed seashore and they plant themselves at the feet of lofty, snow-tipped mountains; and the long-suffering American continues to endure them without a protest.

A recent issue of the Roadside Bulletin, a little magazine published by the American Nature Association, contains a series of pictures of roadside advertising signs, and the series is enough to make the reader doubt the collective sanity of the American public.

With a magnificent continent criss-crossed by excellent roads, and with the entire population on wheels ready to go out and enjoy these roads, we permit commercial interests to mar the scenery, desecrate the open country and inflict monotonous ugliness on us from one sea-coast to the other.

A number of states have tried to remedy matters by law; but the law, in this case, is rather ineffective. You can keep them from being placed in the vicinity of railroad grade crossings—but that is about all. You cannot keep a needy farmer from renting a vacant lot to some over-zealous advertiser. You cannot keep a man from smearing an ugly sign across the side of his barn. You cannot keep the owner of some dilapidated eye-sore of an abandoned grain elevator or run-down factory from plastering it with screaming posters.

Why do we put up with it anyway? Is there something radically wrong with our aesthetic sense, that we permit these signboards to litter our countryside in such profusion? No country on earth offers its motorists such a lovely variety of tours to choose from; and no country permits its tours to be spoiled, as we permit the billboard, the hot-dog stand and the filling station to spoil ours.

The remedy, of course, lies not in law but in an aroused public opinion. The problem really could be disposed of quite easily. If Americans generally would vow not to buy of advertisers who deface the landscape with billboards, the nuisance would die overnight. At any rate, it might be worth a try. You can start it for yourself.—Paragould Press.

Where Depression Hurts

THE failure of prosperity may be worrying the government of this country, but the problem at Washington is as nothing compared with the problem faced in certain governments south of the Isthmus of Panama. In the United States, a business depression is apt to bring an unfavorable result at the polls, but in South America it is apt to bring on a revolution.

It is hardly too much to say that practically all of the current South American revolts originated in trade depressions. Citizens of any country get restive when business is bad, but in Latin America they get downright violent.

It is foolish, of course, for any country to blame hard times on the government in power. But at least the situation here isn't as bad as it might be. Just suppose that our disillusioned voters were rushing to the armories instead of to the ballot box!

"Safety" Stars in Schools

DEVELOPING intelligent citizens through safety education and teaching accident prevention is advocated by L. T. Tustin, supervisor of rural schools in the state of West Virginia. He points out that a cautious man or woman is seldom injured except through momentary lack of concentration of thought or through the unexpected presence of an unusual circumstance whose consequence cannot be avoided.

Mr. Tustin cites the appalling growth of the automobile death rate, and says:

"It is clear to me that there is need of some consistent effort to reduce the number of public accidents. It also appears clear that if the school can do something to this end, it is wholly justified in including in its curriculum instruction designed to decrease the constantly growing number of accidents and deaths.

"The progressive teacher will experience new means of making her schoolroom a living, active world, in which the children acquire the experiences of life through living; in which these experiences will be organized for the control of situations outside the schoolroom, that the children will face in their later lives."—Eldorado Daily News.

Nailing It to the Mast!

SECRET-SCORPED BUSINESS VESSELS

HIGH U.S. DOLLAR STANDARDS

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The last hasn't been heard of the labor situation in the southern textile mills. Although there have been no new strikes and no shootings of mill workers for many months, organized labor has been burrowing into that unorganized territory and since January has established 40 new local unions of the United Textile Workers of America.

There are about 367,000 textile workers in the south, and labor's present task is to get them into unions and to make their employers and the other people of the south recognize their right to organize, according to Mrs. Raymond Robins, the social economist, who is president of the National Women's Trade Union League.

The league has been devoting most of its attention to the south since it decided two years ago to move its headquarters from Chicago to Washington in order to be more closely in touch with the situation. At the annual meeting of its executive board here recently, little else was considered than its southern work, in which it is cooperating with the United Textile Workers and the American Federation of Labor.

Need Organization
"Wages in those mills are far too low and hours are much too long," Mrs. Robins explained, "but proper organization is requisite before we can undertake to put the southern textile workers on an equal basis with labor elsewhere in the country."

"Mill owners, refusing to recognize the right of workers to belong to a union, are discharging those who engage in any union activity. In Danville, Va., workers who have been employed as long as 40 years have been thrown out of their jobs for no other reason. In Greensboro, 38 families were put out of their houses and into the streets."

"There is thus far no textile city in the south where the union is formally recognized by the employers and where workers cannot be discharged for union membership."

"We are making every effort to win a dispute and to obtain recognition by persuasion. Strikes will not be called unless it has been definitely proved that there is no other way. But whenever a strike does become necessary, labor intends to win it. Any future strikes will be scientifically organized, with relief work well planned in advance and with the support of organized labor throughout the country."

Workers Disillusioned
Mrs. Robins has had considerable association with the southern mountain folk from whom most of the workers have been drawn into the mills of Tennessee, Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia. They left their mountain homes thinking that $10 a week was all the money in the world, she says, failing to anticipate the expense of life in comparatively civilized communities. After learning the cost of living they were introduced to the speed-up and stretch-out systems.

"We have always tried to interpret the working groups to the public," Mrs. Robins says, "and this is especially true in the south where mill workers have never been looked upon as part of their towns but as a class outside the pale. We want the south to realize that mill workers are folks just like the rest of us and that they aren't just dumb and contented creatures satisfied with whatever crumbs they are given. We will get co-operation when we can get that idea across."

You gave on the way a pleasant smile,
And thought no more about it;
It cheered a life that was sad, the while
That might have been wrecked without it;
And so for the smile and its fruit-
age rare
You'll reap a crown sometime—somewhere.
You lent a hand to a fallen one,
Alit in kindness given;
It saved a soul when help was none,
And won a soul for heaven;
And so for the help you proffered
there
You'll reap a joy sometime—somewhere.—Selected.

New York Texans Buy Back Historic Clock

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(UP)—A group of former Texas citizens, now New Yorkers, headed by Col. John T. Dickerson, has purchased a 100-year-old clock, bought in this city almost 100 years ago to serve as the time piece in the Texan territory when that state was a republic. Col. Edward M. House and Judge Adolphus Regan are members of the group.

The clock was purchased from Lewis Miller Crocker, whose father, the late Captain Crocker, was former mayor of Austin, Texas. He came into possession of the clock when it was sold after the wooden capital building of Texas was burned. The purchase price will be used by Crocker to continue his vocal studies in New York.

The "clock" which hung in the original and each succeeding capital building of Texas until 1882 will be sent to the governor of the state and hung in a spot similar to the original one.

Runnings of the Herd

JOHN MOHLER is the name he goes by. He's a sophomore in the University of Southern California, where they let the quarterback run with the ball. With the whirling gyrations of the driving rushes of Morley, Don Williams and Russ Saunders still fresh in their minds, fans of Trojan football already are making predictions that Howard Jones' youthful quarterback will become the greatest ball-carrier that ever stepped with the Thundering Herd.

Kaer, Drury, Williams and Saunders—those are football names to conjure with, especially on the Pacific coast. Mention any of them around a Notre Dame man, and he'll know whom you are talking about.

But now Jones is coming up with another, a kid who did his prep at Alhambra high school. Mohler has a sophomore rating academically; grid fanatics are saying that he's a post-graduate in the art of running with a football.

Debuted in Tough Spot

HE was a star last fall with the Trojans. U. S. C.'s Josh Jones thought so much of him even then that they packed him along on the trip to Chicago to meet Notre Dame. He sat through the entire contest at the Trojan mentor's elbow.

So when Mohler made his varsity debut a few days ago, all of Los Angeles and southern California was expecting something big. He didn't disappoint.

Jones rushed him into the opening contest in a tough spot. One good look was all he took to size up the situation. His first job was to catch a spiraling punt on the dead run. A moment later he had scored his first touchdown.

Whether Mohler wishes to go through for a score every time he carries the ball or whether he is stopped at the line of scrimmage, coast fans are going to marvel at him. His very manner is brilliant. They say he's a born ball-carrier.

Large Crowd Expected At Hope-Malvern Game

Both Teams Have Made Good Records This Season. Malvern Reported to Be Bringing Pep Squad and Band

Hope Bobcats continue their series of home games Friday afternoon when they play the Malvern high school Leopards at Fair Park field. This is the fourth consecutive home field clash and the last until Camden is played here on November 7.

Malvern is reputed to be the strongest team Hope has opposed on the gridiron so far this season. Fordyce, one of south Arkansas' best, managed to run up only one touchdown over them a few weeks ago and Malvern has since worsted Gurdon by 18-0. While it has no bearing on the local situation we might also mention that Malvern has just trampled over the Batesville High 36-0. Taken as a whole this looks like Hope Bobcats might have a harder fight on their hands Friday than they have had so far this year.

The average weight of the visiting team as received from Malvern shows that Hope has a slight edge over them in that respect. It is not enough to be of much advantage so the two teams will enter the field about evenly matched.

Coach Wilkins reports that the Bobcats continue to record improvement. This week has been spent in the smoothing up of their plays, getting more efficiency into each, and with special attention being given to defense on passes.

The line-up for tomorrow's game shows Matt Reeves back in his old position of center with Chamberlain transferred to left guard. Reeves has been out of the play most of the time for two weeks because of an injury but comes back as fit as ever. The team will, however, be handicapped by Jack still on the bench on account of being hurt in last week's game with Waldo. Pritchett will likely not be quite up to par for the same reason, but appears on the line at end. About the same men appear in the line this week as did last and if they do as good a job of blocking in this game it isn't likely that the Leopards are going very far through that line. Mauldin, Pritchett and Schooley starred in the line against Waldo and as all three appear in the start against Malvern the opposition will face an almost impenetrable defense.

Malvern comes here Friday backing their team to the limit, bringing band, pep squad and all the town and school that can arrange transportation. The previous games have all had good attendance but this one will likely be a record breaker in this respect.

The line-up for Friday shows Pritchett and Mauldin, ends; Hargis and Jones, tackles; Chamberlain and Schooley, guards; Reeves, center; Brown, quarterback; Wray and Harrell, halfbacks; Bacon, fullback.

The game will be refereed by Travis Thomas, of Magnolia, former University of Arkansas captain.

Former Bobcats to Play at Little Rock

Robison and Secrest Both to Start in Southwest Conference Game

FAYETTEVILLE, Oct. 15.—Two former Hope High School players will be in the Razorbacks' line-up when the University of Arkansas meets Texas A. & M. College in a Southwest Conference football game at Little Rock on October 25. They are Jack Robison, who has earned a regular berth at tackle, and Earl Secrest, who will start at guard.

Both Robison and Secrest are playing their second year on the Razorback squad. Robison was a substitute center last year and was expected to play under study to Buckelew, 250-pound giant from Bauxite, this year. However, a shortage of linemen has caused Coach Thomsen to shift the Hope boy to tackle where he performed brilliantly in the last two games.

Robison weighs 183 pounds, while Secrest barely tips the beam at 170. Both are aggressive players, and are doing much to help Arkansas fans to forget the quartet of 200-pound tackles and guards who graduated last June.

Both Robison and Secrest are working their way through school. Robison is on the night shift of the Fayetteville Fire Department while Secrest is working at a gasoline filling station.

A number of Hope people are expected to be in the stands at Kavanaugh Field, Little Rock, to see the two Hope boys perform against the Texas Aggies. The game is a Southwest Conference encounter and is considered the big game of the year for the Razorback eleven.

Two Industries Improved

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—The mining and textile industries showed general improvement on October 1, a survey of industrial conditions in Pennsylvania by Peter Glick, State Secretary of Labor and Industry, showed.

Interested in nature study since Mrs. Atkins displayed her collection of insects. Each morning several children come to school carrying a worm or bug to Mrs. Atkins or Miss Anderson. Dwight Walton gave Mrs. Atkins a wolfy worm last Friday, which she put in a box. Monday morning, much to the delight of the children, it had spun its cocoon and is taking its nap therein. Dwight showed it to his room mates and now the primary folks have a number of worms of various kinds in a fruit jar carefully watching them to see what they will do.

After working 10 years on the job, Scroggs has named his plane "The Last Laugh."

Fruit Ban Is Off Against Florida

Conference Recently Has Ended 18 Months of Quarantine

ATLANTA, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Eighteen months after the Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine was clamped down on Florida citrus products it was lifted today by agreement of entomologists of 18 Southern and Western States. The ban was lifted following assurance of the United States Department of Agriculture that danger of further infestation had disappeared.

The Federal Plant Board said that it would assume all responsibility in event of any infestation in future, according to Manning S. Yoemans, Georgia State Entomologist, who participated in a Washington Conference from which the agreement to raise the ban resulted.

The first restrictions went into effect May 1, 1929, curtailing shipments of Florida citrus fruit in its natural state. While a strongest eradication campaign was waged by federal and state authorities, a modified order on

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore for a home in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother, MARGARET ROGERS, her mother, divorced Mitchell, and her sister, who is a widow. MARGARET ROGERS, a young woman photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love.

Mitchell takes EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons considers Celia a menace to her life. She is jealous of her. She invites the girl to her home in New York and there Celia meets a young man, JORDAN, who is a charming character. Mrs. Parsons encourages the match. Celia finds Jordan really at first but soon by his romantic love making after he has rescued her from drowning.

LISL DUNCAN, socially prominent, becomes Celia's loyal friend. With Mrs. Parsons' assistance Mitchell arranges an elaborate party in honor of his daughter's 18th birthday. Jordan promises Celia to leave the city and go to a shopping trip Celia attends her grandmother and the elderly woman feels that Celia is a threat to her position. Mrs. Parsons returns to New York and Jordan calls to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

ferent matters. Tod's idea of conversation was whispering to Celia how much he missed her. Had she missed him, too? Didn't she know that when she turned her head that way he had to kiss the pink tip of her ear?

Celia gave up the attempt to be serious. She really did not try very hard. For days she had been unhappy, and now Jordan's magnetic nearness seemed the answer to all her longings. He left at midnight, and Celia went upstairs to the room that had been hers on her earlier visit, happier than she had felt for days.

In the morning she and Evelyn had a long talk over the breakfast table. Celia came downstairs dressed for a morning in the garden. Mrs. Parsons looked charming and languid in morning pajamas of champagne satin and pale green chiffon.

"Oh-ho!" she said coyly as Celia appeared. "I can guess why you're looking so happy this morning!"

The girl's cheeks flushed.

"It's a wonderful morning," she began.

"Isn't it! But I'm surprised that you noticed it. Celia, you're blushing! And no wonder, with a certain young man calling here last night!"

"Mrs. Parsons, you don't think there's anything wrong in my seeing Tod once in a while, do you?"

"Wrong? Why, of course not!"

"I mean because of what father said. Of course I promised I wouldn't, but it's such a mix-up—"

"Sit down, Celia." The widow arched her brows, indicating that the maid was coming and would overhear. Celia drew out a chair, seated herself and began to nibble a bunch of grapes. After Lisl had brought the muffins and disappeared, Evelyn said:

"My dear, I thought we went over all that. There's just a trivial misunderstanding on your father's part. He'll come around all right as soon as I've talked to him."

"Then you haven't said anything yet?"

"How could I? The poor man has been so upset with your grandmother and getting her away to the country and trying to adjust—er—strained relations. I'm sure you see it wouldn't have been wise."

"No-o, I suppose not. Only I won't be really settled in my mind until father knows Tod and admits he was wrong."

The younger girl broke a muffin and buttered it. "There's one thing that worries me. You see, Barney—remember, I told you about him? Well, he isn't going with any other girls. It doesn't seem quite right for me to let Tod come to see me when I know how hard Barney is working and never having any fun."

"How are you so sure of that?"

"Why, he told me so. And anyhow, he never goes with other girls!"

EVELYN PARSONS' laughter was a scornful trill.

"My darling," she said patronizingly, "when you've lived as long as I have you'll never believe pretty speeches like that from men. Oh, I won't say that they don't mean them—at the time! Never mind about your Barney! He'll take care of himself. The thing for you to do is enjoy yourself and if young men want to show you attentions, thank your stars!"

"I suppose you're right," Celia agreed hesitantly. She did not tell Evelyn that what really worried her was the fact she had received only one letter from Barney Shields. There were times when Tod Jordan, for all his fascination, paled in importance to the youth in Baltimore.

That afternoon she went to her room, wrote a long letter to Barney and walked to the postbox at the corner of the drive and mailed it.

The days at Larchwood passed pleasantly.

Often she and Mrs. Parsons drove to the country club for tea, or later in the evening Evelyn enjoyed her bridge and Celia danced or amused herself with the younger crowd.

Lisl Duncan came for her on two separate afternoons and they drove to the beach.

Celia's father adopted the habit of driving to Larchwood two or three evenings each week. Occasionally he arrived in time for dinner, sometimes later. He seemed drawn by the home-like atmosphere of the place. On these evenings Evelyn Parsons always spent a little more time at her dressing table.

When the three of them were together Evelyn found frequent opportunities for showing her affection for Celia. She praised the girl constantly. At such times John Mitchell looked pleased.

Tod Jordan called often. Sometimes he drove down in the afternoon. It did not seem strange to Celia that Jordan never was hampered by business ties. In this new world men and women both lived leisurely. No one she knew seemed to work except her father.

As the days slipped by she began to take a new interest in Jordan.

Celia's changed attitude was not lost on Evelyn Parsons. With infinite pains and care Mrs. Parsons was setting the stage for her triumph.

On a Saturday morning Lisl arranged a picnic. It was to take place that afternoon. By a miracle Dicky Caruthers was able to get away from town, and Celia and Jordan were to join them. Lisl had wheedled from her father permission to drive the coupe—a authorized excuse, of course. She would have the coupe packed, pick up the two men and call for Celia at four o'clock.

"But father's coming down tonight!" the girl said, still holding the telephone and turning to Mrs. Parsons. "What'll I do?"

"Oh, we can manage that. Run along. I'll tell him you're having dinner with friends. It will be all right."

Celia informed Lisl she would be waiting at four.

They set off gaily. Lisl was in holiday spirits, and to prove the point she was attired in flowing white linen trousers, a blue shirt and white beret. Celia wore her favorite yellow tennis dress, a red and orange scarf about her curls, bandanna fashion. She and Jordan rode in the rumble seat. Lisl drove the car, her precious Dicky, at her side.

"Where are we going?" Celia asked.

"Don't know. Some place Lisl likes. Lord—sun's hot, isn't it?"

"I don't mind."

They reached the picnic site, a wooded hill overlooking a wide valley.

"Very pastoral!" Jordan commented. "Sorry, Lisl, but I'm not the rustic type."

Celia passed sandwiches and poured coffee from the thermos bottle. Dicky, not to be surprised, talked about the new play.

The lunch was excellent—because, as Lisl said, she had had nothing to do with it and bought it all at a delicatessen shop. When the last crumb of cake had disappeared they burned the papers and packages.

Celia and Jordan wandered up the hill to look at the sunset. The man's mood had improved.

"Like this kid stuff—picnics," he said, "don't you, honey?"

"Love 'em."

"And somebody loves you, too!"

They rejoined Lisl and Caruthers. Dusk had fallen when the quartet started homeward. Gradually the sky darkened.

It was wonderful riding through the darkness, but Celia's wits were at work. How was she to avoid a clash with her father? Mitchell must not see Tod Jordan. She would have to find a way to dismiss Tod.

Possibly her father would have returned to town. No, that was not likely. They had nearly reached Larchwood now.

Celia would have been amazed at the scene on the veranda there. Evelyn, pale and lovely in the moonlight, leaned against a pillar. John Mitchell stood beside her. He bent his head, his eyes meeting hers earnestly.

"Evelyn," John Mitchell's voice came unsteadily, "you know what I've been wanting to tell you!"

Louisiana's Youngest Moonshiners

After spending weeks looking for work so that they could support their aged, paralyzed mother and their 10-year-old sister, these two New Orleans boys started a whisky still and are now under arrest as Louisiana's youngest moonshiners. They are Joe Porrechio, 15 (left) and his brother, Paul, 17. Raiders took them as they were about to load five barrels of whisky on a wagon.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes into the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"Science is revolutionizing all forms of manufacture. The manufacturers of LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes have extended me the courtesy of an invitation to their factories. I was not able to accept but have taken the opportunity to read the reports of scientific men as to the achievements in their factories."

"It is clear that in no line has science been more intelligently applied than in the making of cigarettes."

LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating! Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray.

Club Girl Reports
On Little Rock Fair

Faye Samuel Writes Interesting Story of Trip to State Exhibition

Leaving Hope Monday morning Oct. 13, I arrived at Little Rock at 11:30. Walked at station a short while and then we were carried to Fair grounds by Mr. and Mrs. Barnett. I registered and was placed in care of Mrs. Connelley. 4-H headquarters were in a large building in Cinderella garden. I didn't see very much that afternoon except the club exhibits, but they were very interesting to me.

It rained all afternoon and night. I attended a banquet Monday evening which was given in a large building in Cinderella garden. I enjoyed it very much especially supper. The cowboy band played several selections. One of the champion rope dancers did a few stunts. We also had some splendid Hawaiian music. Retired at 8:30.

Tuesday up at 6. We went to see the country first. Breakfast 7:30. 9 a. m. assembly at Cinderella garden. Roll call county delegates responding. Mr. Jernigan made a very interesting talk and introduced several good speakers. They all gave the 4-H girls and boys a word of encouragement. Then gave them an opportunity to tell something about their county. 9:30 a. m. Welcome address by J. R. Alvord, President, State Fair. 10 a. m. How Railroads Help 4-H Club Work. 11 a. m. Missouri Pacific railway. 11:30 a. m. organized to see the Fair. 12 noon lunch.

1:30 p. m. assembled at headquarters. 1:40 to 4 p. m. seeing the Fair by district groups. 6 p. m. supper. 7:30 p. m. midway and festival of fire. Retired at 10:30.

Wednesday—up at 6:30. Breakfast at 7:30. 8:45 a. m. assembly, community singing. 9 a. m. greeting P. T. Cole. Cotton Belt Railway. 9:30 a. m. "Are You Going to College?" Dean Dan T. Gray. 10:40 a. m. 4-H style dress review contest. There were seventeen entrants. In the style show, exhibiting a dress for a school girl. Shirley McHenry of Paragould won first. Zuma Dalton of Conway, second and I third place.

I won other honors while at congress. I am a fourth year 4-H girl of sixteen summers. I have had poultry, sewing and cooking for my project. This is my first year in gardening and canning. Won first on peaches and tomatoes and ball jar exhibit at State Fair.

There were 462 containers of canned food in 4-H department, which represents what the 4-H club girls are doing in food preservation. One hundred and fifty girls were competing in 4-H department.

At the Southeast Arkansas Fair I won first on berries, peaches, plums, pears and tomatoes. First on poultry, first on collar and cuff set and second on made-over woolen dress. Eva Montgomery of Nevada county won first on made over dress. I also won first on house dress in general department. I entered the Borden dress contest this year and won $10 on my school dress. I've also entered national canning contest. I am very proud of my first year in gardening and canning. Canning 94 quarts and 18 pints.

I was very glad to represent 4-H club girls of county for excellence of work.

Soon afternoon Wednesday we left the Fair grounds and went to town to view the free show that was at Majestic theatre. We all enjoyed this very much.

Words fail to tell all about the trip for that is impossible, just let me say it was enjoyed by all. Club work has been of untold value to me.

6 p. m. supper. 7:30 p. m. were leaving Little Rock. 10:45 we arrive at Hope.

Again we want to thank the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. for their kindness, the State Fair for providing free admission to Fair and free lodging while at congress. For Mr. Jernigan, Mrs. Connelley, Mrs. King, Miss Bonstengel, Miss Posey and others for their goodness.

We wish to thank Miss Bucher our home demonstration agent and Mr. Smith, county agent, for their help and kindness.

The opportunity of attending State Fair viewing our work and the contact with outstanding club members gave me an incentive to do better work next year.

Faye Samuel.

Increased Births Answers
Long Debate on Control

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Babies were back in fashion in Britain today after one of the longest discussions of birth control that England has ever known.

Figures released by the Registrar-General revealed that 170,212 babies were born in England and Wales during the second quarter of 1930, an increase of 600 over the same period last year. It was the first time since the last quarter of 1928 that the babies had beaten the record of the corresponding period in the previous year.

Britishers were wondering whether it was a bit of ironical humor that the increase coincided with the birth control battle which opened in the press and pulpit in the spring and continued at the Lambeth conference of Anglican bishops.

Paraguay New Field
For American Autos

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Paraguay, little South American republic sandwiched in between Argentina, Bolivia and Brazil, bids fair to become an important market for American-made automobiles, according to Trade Commissioner Tewksbury at Asuncion.

Tewksbury, in a report to the Commerce Department, revealed that only 665 automobiles and 772 trucks and buses were registered in Paraguay at the beginning of 1930. This compares with a population estimated at between 100,000 and 200,000.

The trade commissioner says the automobile will play an important part in the economic advancement of the republic.

Loser in Primary
Wins in Contest

Secretary of State to Certify J. M. Jackson as Prosecutor Nominee

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 16.—Secretary of state Jim B. Higgins was notified yesterday that an election contest between Prosecuting Attorney John J. DuLaney of Ashdown and J. M. Jackson in the Democratic primary last August, has been decided in Jackson's favor, the mandate of the trial court directing that the state Board of Election Commissioners, of which Mr. Higgins is secretary, certify Jackson's name to the county boards in the Ninth Judicial Circuit.

Mr. Higgins completed certification of ballots to all other counties yesterday. He said he will certify ballots today to boards in Polk, Pike, Howard, Sevier and Little River counties, comprising the Ninth Judicial Circuit, upon receipt of the court order in the contest case. DuLaney, defeated Jackson two years ago in the primary after the latter had served only one term.

Jackson opposed DuLaney in the primary this year and although the official count by the county Central Committees in the district gave DuLaney a small majority, Jackson was declared the winner by 10 votes when the contest was decided yesterday. It was said that DuLaney plans to appeal to the state supreme court.

Bricks Cut Jail Terms
For These Prisoners

CENTER, Neb., Oct. 16.—(UP)—Whenever there are as many as four prisoners in the Knox county jail here, the wheels of industry turn for they make bricks.

The plan is eventually to build a new courthouse and jail of that brick. Credit for the plan is given to County Attorney Peterson. He learned that Knox county clay is excellent for brick making and reasoned that the county should profit by the labor of men "laying out fines" in the jail.

In conjunction with the plan, a merit system was adopted whereby prisoners may cut down their sentences by turning out a good quantity of brick.

To date, nearly 100,000 bricks have been manufactured by county prisoners.

Old Precedent Broken
By Academy of Design

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(UP)—The National Academy of Design has broken a precedent of 105 years by excluding from its exhibits this fall the work of painters and sculptors who are not members.

Thousands of non-member artists have exhibited at the Academy shows and many of them have later become famous. The only charge has been the cost of shipping. The only requirement was that the work reach the standard of quality set by the selection jury.

The Academy explains its new policy with the statement that the preponderance of painting and sculpturing by non-members in the exhibits caused an inadequate representation of members.

Erstwhile Signpainter
Wins High Art Honor

FITTSBURGH, Oct. 16.—(UP)—Of 48 American artists, whose paintings were admitted to Carnegie International Art exhibit by the American Committee on Selection, John Kane, erstwhile house and sign painter, of Pittsburgh, was the only Pennsylvanian to gain the prized honor.

Kane, who turned from sign painting several years ago, to art, has exhibited five times in the international.
